Fashion Stylist and e-Boutique Owner
"Savvy Fashionista"

Monique Williams-Ross is a Fashion Stylist and Designer known for her effortless, keen sense of style. Her natural ability to style hair, apply makeup and design clothes as if she had a magic wand made her a sought-after trendsetter in her hometown. Known for her creative skills; she often did personal shopping and styling for many friends, family, and classmates.

After attending Norfolk State University for Fashion Design & Merchandising and Bauder College for Fashion Marketing; she was compelled to create her own fashion line, Elan Artistry. Known for its signature feathered jeans and tops, Elan Artistry featured in various fashion shows such as DC Fashion Week, New Day Associates 37th International Designer/Model of the Year and the StreetGlam 2010 Fashion Show. As a Fashion Stylist and passionate visionary, Monique relishes in creating looks and has styled, coordinated and directed many photo shoots. One of her notable favorites is the 2004 Washington Wizards Dance Team Calendar.

After years of accumulating massive amounts of clothes, Monique began selling many of her pieces online to make room for new designs. The Savvy Fashionista was curated to bring customers custom pieces, hand-picked vintage finds, high-end, fashion-forward looks at affordable price points and a fashion lover's blog that offers fashion tips and discusses fashion faux pas and the latest trends.

Monique is a member of the National Association of Professional Women.
